

Fenton Whelan, Acasus

Acasus supports governments to improve health and education outcomes. It works with governments across Africa, Asia and South America on transformational reforms, with a particular focus on improving leadership, management and data. Its work has led to some of the fastest improvements ever seen in outcomes for citizens.

Fenton founded Acasus and currently works to support a range of governments in their response to the Covid crisis. He previously worked as a consultant for McKinsey and Company, and has a degree in Arabic from the University of Oxford.